Thank you for your email. Had a quick look at the photo and proposed sketch and I think that it is a reasonable way forward and the style of window is more appropriate. Of course you still have the issue of the glazing bars but there are ways round this now. On the openings where you don't have the mullions (ie first floor above entrance) it might be a good idea to just beef up the timber mullions a bit so they replicate the stone ones although this isn't critical. Hope the above is helpful.
