Comments: As a long standing resident of Dinting, I have seen the volume of traffic along Dinting Road increase to a staggeringly high level for a road that is effectively a minor road.

To now discover that a development of upto 65 houses is proposed at one of the most critical junctions along this long, narrow road, is of major concern.

This is a road used by pedestrians, i.e. residents, children attending Glossopdale school, walkers, people fishing in the nearby stream. It harbours vital wildlife and affords one of the few spots in Glossop where you have a panoramic view of the landscape. In other words, this is a small community proud of its surroundings and equally aware that the infrastructure supporting it is not able to cope with an additional 65 homes.

Please don't turn Glossop into a gridlocked hell and furthermore protect the few open spaces we have left before the town becomes nothing more than a sea of anonymous housing estates.
