Comments: There is apparently no information provided here on where the path would be diverted too. I must assume then that any alternative path would be longer, less enjoyable, less well known and would impinge on adjacent landowners rights.

There does not seem to be any valid reason for the developer not to continue to provide a right of way along the existing route.

While the application is being considered, the developer must be required to immediately provide safe access along this right of way, or face a penalty under Highways act Section 137.
