Subject: Flags - Barratt Homes, Linglongs Rd

Concerning the Sales & Information Centre erected by Barratts at the entrance to this site, I was not aware that they had Planning Permission for the erection of flags at this location.

I did know of a previous application for another part of the site, and of the recent application, now apparently abandoned, for flags at the 'temporary' sales office at the even more exposed site at the top of the hill.

The Sales & information Centre now constructed is itself extremely visible, and impossible to miss for anyone approaching up Linglongs Road.

The flags are entirely unnecessary from that point of view, and now dominate the whole landscape, as shown in the attached photograph taken from our property, Daleside, Linglongs Road.

Residents are already concerned that the undertakings by Barratts at their consultations with neighbours last summer, to restore the part of Linglongs Road up the hill by January, are no nearer. Those working on widening the road last November expected the dry stone wall to be rebuilt by that date, but in fact there has been no action whatsoever to that end this year. The new footpath on that side has been completed for some time, and there is now nothing to prevent the full restoration of the wall and the pasture land.

I look forward to receiving your comments on these issues.
