To whom it may concern,

Please accept this email as our objection to the planning application for the housing development around Adderley Place.

To even propose that more housing be built in a town that is already struggling to service its residents in terms of schooling, transport links, dentists and doctors is beyond comprehension.

To add further traffic to roads which are already congested, and with limited or restricted public transport available it makes no sense at all. The high street is suffering as heavy traffic and lack of parking makes it difficult for shoppers to access the local shops. Extra housing means extra vehicles which will only exacerbate an already dire situation.

Furthermore the planned entrance on Dinting Road is worryingly close to a primary school which is on the main road into/ out of glossop and has no off road parking. This means children of primary school age who are already in a vulnerable position are at increased risk of traffic accidents.

Please consider the views of Glossop residents who have lived here all their lives and are desperately trying to stop this town going to ruin. It is unlikely our children will be able to go to secondary school in their home town as there are not early enough places, and to find an NHS dentist anywhere near here is practically impossible.

Please think hard before you make this decision; too many new developments have been approved and built already and the town cannot sustain anymore. To be quite honest everyone has had enough and we take a very dim view of a council who appear to have absolutely no regard for the local residents feelings.

Kind regards
Concerned Residents of Simmondley, Glossop
