Comments: This is an excellent long overdue proposal. The idea of re-opening the railway line from Bakewell to Buxton should not distract. I support to re-opening of a railway from London to Manchester via Buxton but it should be in a tunnel from before Bakewell to after Buxton. Tunneling is easy with modern machines and relatively cheap as an infrastructure project (compared to the cost of HS" for instance). The old line is too curved for a modern fast line and using it would cause noise and disruption in an area of outstanding beauty.
