Comments: The proposal to place a 15m high monopole and its associated cabinets in the historic centre of Hadfield (a conservation area) is completely unacceptable. The site contains some of the town's oldest buildings and is one of the few genuinely beautiful viewing points in the town. The erection of this monopole and its associated cabinets would both mar the views and detract from the historicity of the location which has several listed buildings surrounding it dating from the 17th century onwards. The application itself is contradictory as it states that the discounted locations are due to being visible from residential properties - but the proposed site falls into the exact same category! There is also no real argument for the necessity of the proposal - EE are rolling out a 5G network, but is there proven evidence that there is enough demand in this location that would outweigh the disadvantages of spoiling such an historic site? None are given.
