I would like to furthermore vehemently object to this application on the grounds that the level of vehicular traffic in the Chapel-en-le-Frith area has now reached an intolerable level, one which is seriously injurious to human health and is destructive of amenity value. Notwithstanding proximity to the railway station, this proposal admits to attracting cars and other vehicles to a lovely quiet single track lane where there are many many recreational walkers. It is vitally important that wildlife - already persecuted and pushed to the margins - should enjoy respite from relentless traffic. And humans too.

The owners of the field in question have already shown their disregard for the land. The poor unhappy horses which have been abandoned there must stand on up to a foot of cold mud as they feed. These poor animals have inevitably turned the field into a pock-marked mess.

The so-called glamping site will trash this area I believe, besides making it far harder for town-dwellers to find the peace, tranquility, solace and thrilling glimpses of wild creatures in their natural habitat that the human soul so desperately craves and needs.
