Comments: The George is working hard to be a central part of the local community, modernising it's facilities and trying to attract new customers which will also help other local businesses.

It's important that we allow the village to evolve with the times and not be frozen to a point in history. Being part of a conservation area should mean we focus on keeping the village alive and allow business to try grow and support the community without losing touch with its history and character. It shouldn't mean nothing ever changes and important assets such as the local pub die.
