Comments: I have seen miss leading information about this application both online and through leaflets being posted through doors.

The battery boxes are set to power around 10,000 homes which will be a great move for the local community. The battery boxes are located on a field out of sight from passing traffic etc. I understand that ecology reports have been done and have found no living habitat where battery boxes are to be located. I also understand that the property owners are looking to Introduce additional shrubbery in the same field for wildlife to thrive.

Large lorry's currently drive up and down marsh lane to the lorry park at the old quarry which travel the whole distance of marsh lane. With this in mind I cannot see any issues with the odd vehicle from the electric company visiting the field once built.

The landowners have provided my family with fresh milk and produce for many years and believe that the battery boxes will give the family the necessary funds to keep their farm up and running whilst allowing them to fully maintain the other green belt land that they own. Farms are slowly dying out due to funds. We do not want to lose a local farm who look after their green belt land and fields around them.

This development should be one of many to help Britain achieve NET ZERO
