Submission: Objection

Comments: Why on earth are High Peak BC letting this application get this far? If you read the documentation it clearly states Marsh Lane /Gowhole site is not suitable for this battery storage .It is frankly ick crackers ick Highways think there is little to comment on ? Have they actually tried to drive on Marsh lane or Station rd in a average car ? Are they really local or based on the other side of Derbyshire? Roads go over old pack and railway bridges that have poor visibility : few pavements: a almost impossible turn into Church rd . Highways need to do something to improve this road with or with out a battery storage farm . The site is so near the railway line to Sheffield and net work rail have serious concerns . At least they have some common sense This is a Green Belt why would HPBC be giving Novus the time of day with this ? Has the national park had a say ? This application is not to improve the locality with power and Novus is not a local company. After reading through objections/ support, I note the few supported with odd exceptions do not live in the area of Furness Vale / New Mills !! Some council files on the public forum cannot be read at all . So that needs to be rectified. Playing devils advocate, I can see why for a farmer struggling they would just sell off land so it's tempting but this is where HPBC need to put a-stop to this proposal and support farmers with the NFU in other safe ways . I object to this proposed planning permission Gowhole and Marsh lane . Thank you for listening . Please listen to what true locals are saying at your meetings , HPBC.
