Comments: On behalf of myself & my family, I fear that the asylum seekers being relocated in such a small town would have devastating consequences on all residents and on our tourist industry. Crime rates will soar as already proven across other towns and cities in the UK.

Our resources can not deal with the influx of people, as our police force have already apposed this and made it known publicly.

Surely the halls of residents would be much better suited to house young, local families that are already struggling to get on the housing market.
