Comments: I have no problem with progress after all people need somewhere to live but how can a council have the right to issue planning permission for access off a road they don't maintain? The original plans showed access from Simmondley Lane now it's all from an unadopted road. I've seen plans to move the right of way to the left. I live at 16 and the land between the road edge and my property is on my deeds so where are you going to put the footpath. Also the right of way has never been near a residential property always next to the church and scout hut. If you as a planning committee are championing this then you need full site access from Simmondley Lane. You sort the traffic out as I park on my land which causes a few turning issues. As previously stated I'm a naturist so I tend my garden naked when the sun's up. I'm told no properties overlook my garden I hope carries some because I'm not going to change, and I'm told my property won't be overlooked
