the wider community and the infrastructure of the town have not been adequately considered as detailed below:

housing, NHS dentists and doctors for local residents. Statistics show that the asylum seekers are likely to be predominantly young men. With a lack of sports and social facilities this will lead to loitering in the parks, Pavillion Garden and other public areas.

Parents and children are happy to walk to school and play in the parks. An influx of asylum seekers, which are statistically likely to be young males will have an impact on how safe people will feel.
