Comments: This is inappropriate for a victorian town house on a road where all the houses on either side have clear space between the hous and the road, and it could set a precedent for similar use of other front gardens in the area. If a shed of this size is required there is no need for it to be in this position. There is space to put it at the back of the driveway if the fencing between the house and the side fence is rearranged and the small shed on the driveway moved into the back garden.
