Comments: A three storey block of flats is just not practical for the estate where it's planning to be situated and will look out of place.

Most households have at least two cars and with only one parking place per flat this will result in a lot of on street parking which will cause issues for current residents - this has already proven to be a challenge with the workers cars at the entrance to the estate right the way up to where the block of flats intend to be built leaving space for one car to pass with often no passing place.
