Comments: I do not believe all the comments to be fair and accurate, I attend Fitness in Mind as a coach and to train myself and have found it to be super understanding of the environment around it and the locals. I have never seen anybody's driveways blocked and park along that road myself, it is also worth mentioning that Fitness in mind members are not the only people who park along that road. The outside space is such a great addition to Fitness in mind, training outside in nature is a powerful thing to do and I am unaware of any other gyms who have this or the option to have it, as for training in winter months outside I would say that the risk assessments would be rather tricky to write, and also a rather unpleasant exercise experience. I truly believe that Fitness in mind would work with any locals who have concerns and find away to operate without disruption and disturbance, in this day and age where mental health is declining fast exercise and nature are vitally important, I speak through personal experience and on going struggles that to loose it would be detrimental to people's well being.
