Comments: Over the years I have noticed more and more new houses being built in/around Buxton. With each one built I feel what makes Buxton a special place to live in is being eroded away.

We also don't have custody suites or even a court anymore to help safeguard residents. If more people are to settle here, like in that monstrosity opposite B&Q, it would make the problem worse wouldn't it?

No new dwellings for Buxton please.

I'm sorry to be blunt but it is not a god given right for everyone to own a home. I accept some local people will need emergency accommodation at some point in their lives. Isn't that a better option for developers to turn, for example the old halls of residence, into safe/temporary accommodation?
