Comments: We do not actually object to this planning application as we are not sure if there would be anything particular to object to, but saying that, we are very much dreading the idea that even more building work is going to take place right next door after what has already been a whole year of impacting works at the same and at the adjoining house.

We usually spend a good deal of our time in our garden/outdoor space but this has been affected over the last year by all the building/builders' racket and presence.

I am retiring soon due to hearing problems and was hoping to spend more time outside in our supposedly quiet plot but this will not now be able to be the case.

Site radios, builders 'singing' along. Shouting at each other using 'colourful' language/banter at any hour of the day.

Power tools during breakfast, lunch and sometimes dinner.

Vans of all shapes and sizes coming and going and every one of their doors slammed.

And that's just some of the noise-related stuff.

Then there's the disruption to traffic and the blocking of pavements due to associated vehicles not being able to park on site.

No, we don't object to even more building work, but we are not happy that construction and home 'improvement' on this site is seemingly endless.

If the team who get this building gig could possibly just consider those people living close by then that would be great, and if they could also do so without the constant 'duff duff duff' of the site radio blasting away then that would be a miracle.

We can only hope.

Cheers.
