Hi James

permission-air-source-heat-pump

If the ASHP is MCS-020 compliant then its PD and planning is not required

- Certified ASHP unit
- Certified installer
- MCS-020 risk assessment demonstrated <42dB(A) at receptor.

If the ASHP is not a certified unit to be installed by a certified installer, the applicant needs to submit a BS4142 assessment. You can't rely on a MCS-020 assessment for none MCS-020 products.

Good Morning

I am in the process of finalising my report and recommendation to approve an application for a domestic Air Source Heat Pump but have realised that I need to verify that the noise impacts are acceptable.

Can you please therefore review the attached documents and confirm that you are satisfied that the proposal will be acceptable with regards to noise?

Thanks

James Stannard
