Submission: Objection

Comments: There is absolutely no justification for the continued destruction of woodland sites such as this, there are plenty of properties that could do with investment in their upkeep, in abandoned buildings that could be purchased and brought up to standard, rather than further decimating nature to flatpack some newbuilds. It's also atrocious that developers can keep resubmitting applications again and again in the hope that one will slip through the cracks when previous applications have met with disapproval from the local community. Protect woodlands. Build houses on golf courses if you must use green space.
