Comments: To add to my earlier comments. The company seeking planning permission have installed CCTV with lights. The CCTV monitors our shared yard and gateway, used by 4 other houses. The camera facing the yard also has a light which is on all night.

Whilst I know that CCTV is ok to use on shared areas, as long as data protection etc is complied with, in this case it is intrusive to other neighbours and the light is unnecessary, particularly as bedrooms of 3 houses face onto the shared yard.

There was no consultation with other yard users about the CCTV and so we are unhappy with this and standby our previous comments that the change of use is not suitable for a property with a shared yard.
