Comments: Yet another White Elephant for the town the loss of parking is going to leave a nightmare for residents and tourists alike the talk of new parking behind the station will be a long trek for people with shopping not to mention the loss of disabled parking. To me the amount of new living accommodation is far too excessive for the plot the height of the buildings will blot the townscape and let's face it copper type wall cladding will look more like a commercial setting none of the details resemble anything like the local architecture.
