Submission: Neither

Comments: The majority of trees/groups are situated on land adjacent to the proposal. At present, relationships between dwellings and retained trees are not known as there is no illustrative scheme. It is noted that the principle of 6 units has been established via the 2024 consent and that up to 9 units are proposed via the current application. There is no objection to the principle of 9 units. The disposition of units within the site and their relationship to retained trees (per BS5837-2012 and other relevant standards/documents/best practice) will determine the acceptability of any detailed scheme from an arboricultural perspective.
